AROUND THE TOWN

Miss H. O'Connor was a visitor in Calgary on Saturday.

Ex-Mayor G. B. Sexsmith, who has been ill for some time, is now confined to his bed.

The Christmas tree and concert at Edston will be held in the schoolhouse on Wednesday evening, December 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hunsperger and Mrs. Wm. Hunsperger, spent last Tuesday at the home of Mr. J. A. Witwer, Acme.

Mr. Geo. Harrison, who will again have charge of the skating and curling rinks has had a hard time getting foundation for ice.

The Burnside U. F. A. are holding a fowl supper and dance in Jutland school on Friday, December 8th. Everybody remember the date.

Mr. W. Finlay, missionary on furlough, is to address a missionary meeting next Sunday of Westcott Baptist church at 8 p. m. Everyone is heartily invited.

Mr. M. Mecklenburg, the well known eyesight specialist, announces that his next trip to Didsbury will be on Thursday, December 14th, at the Roschud Hotel.

Mrs. A. W. Astell who is entered in the Morning Albertan Contest is within 300 points of the top. If your subscription to the Albertan has or soon will expire you can help her win by renewing with her.

Everyone interested in the Didsbury Agricultural Society is requested to turn out to the annual meeting which is being held in the Opera House on Wednesday, December 6th.

Messrs. J. A. McHugh, A. G. Studer, E. E. Freeman, T. Thompson, S. Tielie, R. P. Crossland, A. V. Buckler and W. F. Sick journeyed to Calgary last Thursday night to attend big doings in Royal Arch Masonry.

Tuesday was really the first day that has seemed anything like winter so far this season. A little snow fell and there was a very cold wind but up until now California could not rival the fine weather. Life was just one Chinook after another.

Mrs. A. Y. McCormack, of High River, has been visiting with Mrs. W. Davies for a few days. Mrs. McCormack was one of the teachers of the public school in the early history of Didsbury and will be remembered better perhaps as Miss H. Elliot.

Mr. W. F. Sick was a visitor to Calgary last week and returned with the report that his son John who is in the hospital there is slowly improving. He is now able to move his limbs a little and it is hoped that the improvement will keep up.

Immigration And Settlement

Immigrant Canadians recently returned home from visits to Great Britain have been giving in their speeches on the subject of immigration to Canada, and one and all have referred to the opportunity which now presents itself for Canada of obtaining thousands of the very best type of British emigrants. It is only the right policy is followed by this country and an energetic effort put forth to attract the steps of these people Canada will.

It is universally agreed that some hundreds of thousands of people in the British Isles must migrate annually, and that Canada can obtain the best of these people if they are gone after and lured in the right way. At the present time, however, the eyes of the majority of these intending British emigrants are turned towards Australia, New Zealand, rather than towards Canada, and it is reported that considerable emigration prevails in England and Scotland that Canada should be neglecting such an opportunity of obtaining good settlers when, admittedly, the Dominion is so badly in need of population.

Probably the Federal Government is working out a new and comprehensive immigration policy. At least it is so believed. But in the mean time Canada is losing tens of thousands of new settlers which might be obtained, and it must be realized that every British immigrant to Australia or New Zealand becomes an additional inducement for others to go there and join friends and relatives rather than come to Canada, just as every one coming here is apt to influence someone else to come.

We have advanced the argument that, so far as the Canada Colonization Association is concerned, it cannot do better work at the present time than to immediately apply its declared policy of "leading settlers to wage work" to those already in this country, and that Canada can obtain the best of these people if they are gone after and lured in the right way. At the present time, however, the eyes of the majority of these intending British emigrants are turned towards Australia, New Zealand, rather than towards Canada, and it is reported that considerable emigration prevails in England and Scotland that Canada should be neglecting such an opportunity of obtaining good settlers when, admittedly, the Dominion is so badly in need of population.

But while this work of education is being prosecuted with its consequent, should not neglect the opportunity which is now being offered to obtain the right type of British emigrants to choose Canada in preference to any and all other countries. Nevertheless, the almost total refusal of settlers to be that this opportunity is not being grasped as it ought to be.

Greater care must, however, be exercised in this line in the selection of immigrants on the land. In the past, with millions of acres of waste lands conveniently near to existing lines of railway, immigrants were lured in colonies long distances from means of transportation with the result that they have been, and still are, unable to make a success of earning money in the prohibitive cost of getting their crops to market. Also that it is impossible to raise large crops because the cost of raising them, because of the fact that the greater than the price that can be realized. These settlers may not have starvation, because the land will produce that which they need, but their pockets are empty and they are making no progress.

Such settlers are not active agents in adding to the volume of traffic as sought for by the National Railway in order to make it a more profitable financial success. Yet if they had been lured upon those lands which they themselves and the railways would have benefited and prospered. This is a lesson which should not be lost on our immigration authorities in connection with all future settlement.

Apart from the excessive cost of getting their crops to market, these farmers in isolated districts have to pay excessive prices for all goods and supplies, and when it comes to shipping time the cost of shipping the produce is a matter also operates to destroy profits and to render the cultivation of a proposed average impossible.

In connection with the relocation of present settlers, as well as the location of incoming settlers, every effort should be put forth to populate the vacant lands now reasonably and existing lines of railway. This will mean a more intensive settlement of people within the radius of existing transportation facilities, rather than a further spreading out of scattered settlements.

Wheat Movement Breaks Record
History was made on the last day of October in the movement of Western Canada's big wheat crop. The receipts on Winnipeg Grain Exchange that day were the greatest for any one day in the history of the Dominion, the total number of cars inspected being 2,824. The grain is of high quality, less than ten per cent falling below number three northern, while the greatest volume is number one northern.

Reduced Freight Rates On Grain

Estimated That Fourteen Million Dollars is Saved to Western Farmers

The closing of navigation, with the consequent longer hauls of western wheat for the railways, will not have any effect in increasing railway earnings, according to opinions expressed at Ottawa. It was pointed out that the greater part of the western grain moves during the two months between the opening and the closing of navigation, and that consequently shipments after the close of shipping on the lakes will be somewhat intermittent. The reduction of the railway rate on grain will save the farmers of the three prairie provinces something like $12,000,000, it is estimated, and the reduction in freight rates, without any accompanying reduction in operating costs, was bound to have an effect on the railway net earnings. Where the railways are benefiting, however, as compared with last year, is in the fact the total grain crop to be moved is considerably in excess of that available last year, and this brings about a greatly increased volume of business for the national roads to share in.

Farm Loans Are Profitable

The annual report of the Manitoba Farm Loans' Association, a Government agency, shows a profit of $35,000 after repaying to the Provincial Government the grant made for organization purposes. The report covers a period of nine months ending August 31st, 1922. The purpose of the association is to assist in the financing of farm undertakings in connection with which it has at present outstanding advances amounting to $7,228,629.

Gains 35 Pounds; Rheumatism Is Gone

The wonderful reconstructive powers of Tanbax are again very recently demonstrated. In this instance the grateful beneficiary is John H. King, Locksmith, living at 229, 14th Ave. West, Calgary, Alberta, who declares: "Tanbax built me up to good health, with a gain of thirty-five pounds in weight, over a year ago and I have been feeling fine ever since. Just after coming back from overseas, about two years ago, I was taken down with an attack of rheumatism that crippled me up so I couldn't work and sent me to a hospital for about ten months."

"During this long sleep of rheumatism I lost fifty-five pounds in weight. I was just a shadow of my old self and had no strength or energy left. I felt tired out and exhausted all the time."

"Finally I resorted to Tanbax and got back on my feet so quick that it surprised me. By the time I finished the fourth bottle I was feeling a hundred per cent well. I don't believe Tanbax has an equal."

Tanbax is sold by all good druggists.

GREAT BRITAIN BREAKS RELATIONS WITH GREECE

Because the Greek government, by a court martial, condemned to death the former ministers of the government under the former King Constantine, and executed them after protests from the British government, the British Minister to Greece, E. O. Lindley, has notified the Greek government that Great Britain has broken off relations with that country and the Minister is leaving Athens. The condemned ministers were executed on Tuesday.

Ideal weather eh? I'll say it is.

Mr. Ed. Liesemer has sold the South half of Section 13 which was occupied recently by Mr. G. Hewitt.

Another little Ford runabout's been running around this burg occasionally, lately purchased by an industrious laborer. This should make some of the girls take notice, what do you think Wes?

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beckner and family of Garstairs spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jesmer. Mr. Beckner, Alberta and Beta favored the inmates of the house with some very fine music.

A Xmas tree program is being arranged by the Sunday school and public school combined. A very good program is being prepared. Make it a habit to get here an enjoy a real treat. The date will appear later.

Don't forget the auction sale of our neighbor Phil Ward, on December 6th. Let's all go for lunch anyway.

Cool hunting is the order of the day, almost every farmer around here was on the trail last week.

Several from around here took in the Chautauque, or at least some of the programs, last week.

Mr. Hewitt has a pig that is either lost or stolen, has anyone seen it? A long red one with a feet tail.

A college girl entered an Optician's office.

SILO INCREASES STOCK CARRYING CAPACITY OF LAND 25 P. C.

The old order changeth yielding place to the new. Ideals change, types of farming change and new methods come and go, but the silo has come with a comparative rush and always has maintained its place as a permanent part of successful live stock farming. Fifteen years ago silos were a new venture in eastern Canada; today they are indispensable. In the west the silo has come more slowly, of late years mainly because of the inflated price of grain, and men will not keep live stock where straight grain growing is more profitable.
Now that we have dollar a bushel wheat again, a more diversified type of farming must be the order. Cattle, hogs and sheep are coming to the fore and where cattle in numbers of 20 to 25 head or over are kept, the silo becomes an economic factor necessary for the cheapest production. Cattle must be wintered largely on cheap roughages, and the silo alone permits of the proper storage of large quantities of cheap, succulent roughages, especially corn and sunflowers, which would not give the best results when handled in any other way.

Roughages Grow Well

Sunflowers, oats, peas and clover are the western roughages which can be used as silage to best advantage. Sunflowers rank first in bulk, oats are high in food value and are a sure crop, peas and clover are dearer, and corn is least sure as a high yielding crop. By use of the silo, a great bulk of all these crops can be stored in a very small space more cheaply and with less waste. Fed as silage, the food value of a crop is more largely preserved, its palatability and digestibility are also added to,
and a succulent roughage necessary in a good ration, provided. Silage will reduce the bulk of deer roughages such as hay, alfalfa and greenfeed, at least 50 per cent, and also materially cut down the grain ration where high feeding is indulged in.

Carries More Stock

Four acres of a two-ton crop of greenfeed will carry four mature cattle over six months of winter feeding. Two acres of greenfeed and one acre of sunflowers, at 15 tons per acre or oats at 8 tons per acre, will carry the same number. Therefore, on the basis of the live stock carrying capacity per acre,

MY CANADA
BY
ELINOR MARSDEN ELIOT

Published by Special Arrangement with the Author

"Oh," exclaimed Miss Marshall, with a look of astonishment in her face. "I thought you were old friends."

"That estimable young woman need waiting," Mary warned me that night after we had gone to bed. "I know anything she has her eye on my little son. Don't let her get him. Elmer!" If you don't want him, I'll give him to you. It would be a pity to let such an interesting specimen out of the collection."

I pretended that I was asleep, and Mary—doubtless suspecting the pretence—continued until I thought was an unnecessary laugh in the pillow. I have ceased to pay any attention to Mary's teasing—indeed, I have even told Mr. Livingston and Elmer that I do not care for her. I have no more to say for her. I have nothing further to say.

Two weeks before Christmas Mrs. Livingston had taken charge of all her own affairs, and would allow none of them to be opened up on the evening morning. The Christmas tree was covered with all kinds of all kinds of things, and several of the ones had to be piled on the floor. I think I was almost as much excited as Elmer, but not quite so much. I have never remembered me and a lot of my girls would find like a hazy old dream. "Joy," Elmer said, "I was about six feet square, made of beautiful little, happy, shiny. I suppose I should regret it, but I have to turn my feelings—then the rug is as level."

"You like you to look it for your self," ran the note which accompanied it. "The babies was all shot on my own paper. But I don't want to keep it. I guess you'd better send it home to your father. I notice that old thing, and I don't want to keep it. I don't need that about 'the two badgers, a lot more good horses' would get their legs broke with them out of the way."

No one here except Mary, whom we sent the rug. It was a great pleasure of seeing them all consumed with curiosity.

I do not know what time Elmer was on Christmas morning, but I do know that she woke me before seven by pounding on the door and shouting, "Please to be in. Auntie Elmer! I have something for you from Uncle Don."

To catch the small I jumped out of bed.

ARE YOU A MOTHER?
Mrs. Dalton tells of a Well-known Doctor's Prescription that is safe for Young Mothers to take as a Tonic and Nervine because it contains no harmful ingredient.

London, Ont.—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription saved my life years ago and for that reason I am most enthusiastic in my recommendation of it to women who are ailing and weak. I was taken with the measles when in an expectant condition; then blood poisoning set in. I was greatly alarmed. The doctor advised me to give me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I took several bottles of it, and was restored to absolutely perfect health. I later took Favorite Prescription as a tonic and nerve and received great benefit from it. As a woman's medicine it is unequalled.—Miss Jennie Dalton, 161 York St.

HEALTH BRINGS BEAUTY
Your Health is Vital to You
Beware!—I was suffering from a random system some time ago, was unable to perform my daily duties, and was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I tried it, took two bottles, and was restored to my natural strength. I cannot praise Dr. Pierce's medicine too highly, and will be willing to write to any one reading this paper, especially Mrs. A. H. Bishop, R. No. 1. You'll soon feel better if you obtain this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's at your nearest drug store. In bottles or liquid, or send for Dr. Pierce's at Bridgport, Ont. bed, lighted the gas, and opened the door. Sunny was in her dressing gown and slippers, and she carried a long box which she handed to me with an impressive look.

"Look here, Sunny," said Mary, who of course had been awakened by the noise. "These two must have meant you to give that to me."

"No, he didn't," said the messenger decidedly. "He said give it to Auntie Elmer with his love, and not to wake Mary. I guess he thought you would be tired."

"Very considerate of him, I'm sure," drawled Mary mockingly. "Elmer drew. I think you had better lie down again. You look rather feverish."

"Not scarlet feverish!" queried Sunny anxiously.

"Perhaps it's only the reflection of that pink lamp-shade," Mary answered, after a moment of consideration, and Sunny looked happy again.

I wish I could cure myself of that foolish habit of blushing!"

"Come up and open your box," commanded Sunny. "And then you and Mary get dressed and come down to breakfast. I just said as if I couldn't wait a minute longer to see what Santa Claus brought me, and Mother says that I must wait until everybody else is ready before I touch one thing."

I opened the box, and found—an immense bunch of big, velvety La France roses! To appreciate my feelings one must remember that the nearest florist's shop is hundreds of miles away. Mary looked a whole circle at the flowers, but said nothing. She is failing me now to get domestic and play with her. I think it best to do so, as she threatens to confound and read no other. If I do not go at once.

XXV.

Bar B Ranch.

February 5th, 12—

The first month of the New Year has passed uneventfully. Almost here I know I shall have come to the end of my year in Canada.

Mary left us last week, and all the days are doing at last—most to speak figuratively.

DANGER!

That is to remind Elmer that, aged seventy-five, to skip a few pages just here. It is well for me to forget the coldest result.

I know quite well that I should not be jealous of Mary, but I am, and I am not really jealous of anyone here. It is not a comfortable sensation. I can assure you. I am very fond of Mary, and I hope she will always be good friends, but I must confess it troubles me to hear her praise some man whom I do not like. I don't like a desperate, tame or mild to be in.

Of course there is a man at the bottom of it—who was the first who said that a woman was at the bottom of all the trouble in the world, I wonder? He should not know what he was talking about. For my part, I think this would be a perfectly logical way to let it go to a new life.

Mr. Livingston and I were the best of friends before Mary came, but of late he has been distant towards me. I do not like to be hard on another girl, but I do think that Mary flirted with him a little too much. And I could do nothing but ignore the change in his attitude, and at the same time, I cannot help but feel so ridiculous as to believe that real friendship was possible between a man and a woman. It is quite evident now that Mr. Livingston was so very good to me simply because I was the only girl at the ranch. I suppose he would have dirt with me if I had given him any encouragement. I hope he does not like me. I am sure he does not. I would rather die than let him see just how much I feel the loss of his friendship. I mean.

I have one thing to thank Mary for, although I was angry when first I heard about it. She told Mr. Livingston about Arthur. How much she told I cannot say, now I care now. He (Mr. Livingston) is a kindly of the opinion that we are as good as engaged, and I shall let him continue to think so. It is one way of saving my pride, and I intend to save my pride even at the expense of my boasted honesty. And poor Arthur has nothing to lose by the deception—Mother tells me that he is openly transferring his affections to Helen. "The very best thing that could happen," says Mother in her last letter, and I had not the heart to laugh. "This prospect is good, and he will make a most suitable husband for Helen than you. Helen is just what I was as a girl, but you are different. Your husband will have to be your master, and Arthur is too much of a Christian gentleman to wish to be any woman's master." It looks as if Mother is beginning to understand her duck under her and Victorian veneer, and also has known the charm of a slightly modernized daydream. I hope Helen will not fall in love with Arthur. I wish my baby sister to have something better than his cast-off—but perhaps Helen is not jealous.

Mr. Livingston drove Mary in to Carlton City and saw her started on her journey home. I had taken it for granted that I should go too, but when the time came that let me see very plain that it was not wanted. They said that B was because the day was stormy and I didn't catch cold, so of course I had to submit gracefully. But I know quite well that they did not want me. I suppose B is perfectly natural to people in that condition to wish to be alone to say goodbye. It is horrid I know.

I feel utterly crushed and the thing that hurts me most is the know-believe that there is a cloud between Mary and me. (Perhaps that is not quite honest, but I shall let it stand.) When she kissed me good bye, she was very much affected, and so was I, but her last words braced me up and nothing else could have done. "You will forgive me some time, Elmer," she whispered, and then she turned away before I could reply. Have I made so plain to her that Mr. Livingston's decision has hurt me? She must at least have had the grace to refrain from speaking of it. I hate to feel so towards her—and I wish that I had never seen Don Livingston!

I had a letter from her to-day, just a few lines written on the train and posted when she reached Winnipeg. I do not know how to answer it in my usual way, but I must try to do so. If I can help it, no man living shall come between Mary and me.

I have not had a letter from home for two weeks, but I hope to get two this evening. Mr. Paget called yesterday on his way to Carlton City, and he will come back this way tonight if there is any mail for us. "It is no trouble at all," he assured me when I thanked him; "we Britishers must stand by each other, you know. And we all feel jolly blue when we think the people at home have forgotten us." Every once in a while Mr. Paget does or says some faithful little things that makes me regret the many times I have made fun of him. And then, as he says, we Britishers must stand by each other.

To safeguard the child from dunnage that women cause, see Miller's Worm Powders, the medicine just excellence for children. These powders will clear the system entirely of worms, will regulate and stimulate the organs, injuriously affected by the worms, and will encourage healthful operation of the digestive processes. As a vermin-destroyer it can be relied on for its effectiveness.

Many a man who hands you good advice does not know it is good or he would have kept it himself.

Worms feed upon the vitality of children and endanger their lives. A simple and effective remedy is Miller's Worm Powders.

"Billy" Finds His Master

"BILLY" is home at last; after years of travel in foreign lands, and long months spent in the mud, rain and water of the Canadian front in Flanders Billy has at last arrived at home—and his homecoming is a thing of romance.

"Billy" is a dog, but a wise little dog and a friendly little dog. He was quite willing to make friends with all nice people, but there he stopped. No one could take the place of his rightful master, and for four long years "Billy" sought his lost best friend on the docks at Quebec.

It was there Billy lost his master the day he arrived in Canada in company with a regiment of returning soldiers that came home on the "Empress of France", and since that day never an ocean ship has come to the Canadian Pacific wharf but that "Billy" was there to welcome it and to inspect every passenger that came off in the hope of finding his long lost owner.
